

January 14, 2022

To our travel partners,

With the World Health Organization's classification of COVID-19 outbreak as a global emergency, and the significant recent increases in infections due to the Omicron variant, we've had to cancel our WordPress conference, WordCamp Birmingham, originally scheduled for February 4-5, 2022.

This has been a costly decision given that flights and accommodations have already been booked, and the proximity to the event date. We ask that you consider waiving any penalties due to this global health emergency.

We appreciate your support in this, and I know that the WordPress community will be grateful.
